 GREEN LIBERAL DEMOCRATS

Who are the Green LibDems?

The Green Liberal Democrats are the environmental campaigning group of the Liberal Democrats. It is a significant group within the Party, and has been influential in ensuring that all aspects of the Party's policies consider their environmental impact. It is working to ensure that sustainability stays on the Party's mainstream political agenda.

What the GLD stands for

In line with the founding principles of our Party we are committed to promoting our values, led from a position of respect for the environment and our natural resources. We support the development of policies to alter things for the better; a healthy natural environment is crucial not only to our quality of life but also to the sustainability of life on the planet. Liberal Democrats recognise that the threat to biodiversity and the depletion of our natural resources are as great a threat as climate change.

How GLD works

The Green Liberal Democrats are a democratic group, run on a voluntary basis and is funded by its members, fundraising and donations. We have a stall and run fringe events at both Federal Party Conferences. Our AGM is held at the Party's main annual Conference in September. We have an elected Executive including President and Vice Presidents.

Links within the Party

The Green Liberal Democrats have strong ties with colleagues in Europe as well as in the Parliamentary Party. We maintain links with our councillors across the country and all tiers of local government.

Publications

The GLD publish a quarterly magazine, Challenge, that is acknowledged as a leading source of current and thought provoking information on sustainability, climate change, peak-oil and many other subjects. All members are encouraged to send in articles, especially those providing policy advice and practical ideas.

Conferences

The GLD holds an annual conference where leading experts in their field, Party spokespeople and members with a general interest in the environment get together to exchange information and develop policy ideas. Occasional special conferences may also be organised.
